—Sometime in the early part of the summer of 1881, a member of the feline tribe, much against his will, was put in a basket and taken to one of the many sea-side resorts along the southeastern coast of New Jersey, not far from Cape May.

Whether the sea air was too bracing or the music of the waves unengendered is not known, but at any rate Ben, the cat, did not tarry long by the seaside.

He disappeared on the morning after his arrival. The island—for this seaside resort is an island—was thoroughly searched but no sign of the cat could be discovered and he was given up as lost.

A year later the owners of Ben were again at the seashore, but nothing had been seen or heard of him during the winter, and they came back home again without him. They had, however, been home the second time but a month or so when a strange cat came walking into the house, and not only seemed perfectly at home but gave manifestations of joy when he met members of the family.

The latter were not long in discovering that the strange cat was their old favorite Ben who had been gone for nearly two years. He was given a hearty welcome and installed in his old place in the household.

How he knew the way back to Bristol is a mystery not likely to be solved, but the fact remains that after his long wanderings he arrived home, to reach which he had to cross a wide bay, the State of New Jersey, the Delaware river and travel nearly if not quite two hundred miles. This much travelled cat may be seen almost any day perambulating the fences of the second ward the same as any common cat.

—The author of "Vice Versa," the last English literary sensation, is said to be the son of a London tailor. Before the appearance of his book he was utterly unknown. The longmans made haste to secure him for their new magazine, and everywhere in England he is now the talk.

It is declared that no such literary success has been achieved since the publication of "Jane Eyre," and some enthusiasts boldly put him by the side of Dickens. Seven editions of "Vice Versa" have been rapidly exhausted in London, and in this country the demand will probably be as great.

"Vice Versa" is in the Bristol Library as one of its recent additions. Other books of a popular and attractive character are also to be found there. Those who are already familiar with the Library can testify to its value as a source of entertainment and instruction, and those who are not personally acquainted with it would do well to give it their attention.

They will find there a variety of well selected books, adapted to differing tastes and literary demands, and comprising many of the choice works that have issued from the press in recent years.

A good book is one of the best contributions to the joy of life, and happy are they who appreciate its works, and have the opportunity to welcome its companionship.

—A lodge of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics was instituted in Bristol on Thursday evening last, when about thirty young men met at Washington Hall. The following named officers were elected, Counsellor, Robert H. Neely. Vice-sureor, Robert Feltow; Secretary, William D. Douglass; Assistant Secretary, Frank P. Doble; Financial Secretary, H. W. Host. Trustees, H. W. Host, Frederick B. Bonz, George H. Cramer. The regular meeting nights of the organization will be on Thursday evenings.

—Low-RATE EXCURSIONS TO WASHINGTON.—If ever there was a particularly advantageous time to visit Washington the occasion of the Garfield Monument Fair, November 25th to December—will be the time. Attractions have been arranged for on a scale of grandeur never before attempted in the capital. The committees in charge of the various days (for separate days have been assigned to special features) already report progress enough to guarantee a grand success in the respective entertainments. The following is the order decided on:—

Saturday, November 25th.—Opening ceremonies at the Capitol; oration in the Senate Chamber by Hon. Stanley Matthews.

Sunday, November 26th.—Garfield Memorial Day: special services in all the churches.

Monday, November 27th.—"Army of the Cumberland" and Veterans' Day.

Tuesday, November 28th.—School Children's Day.

Wednesday, November 29th.—Grand Bicycle Meet and Tournament.

Thursday, November 30th.—Knights Templar Day, competitive drill and parade.

Friday, December 1st.—Military Day, competitive drill and parade.

Saturday, December 2d.—District Columbia Day, grand illumination in the evening, parade, &c.

Sunday, December 3d.—Closing ceremonies, will appropriate services in all the churches.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has arranged to sell excursion tickets (including admission coupon) at greatly reduced rates from all principal stations, the details of which will be duly announced.

—There is an expressed fear that diphtheria will become epidemic in Philadelphia. Health officer Mr. Addick said on Tuesday that while there was no reason for alarm, the matter was of sufficient importance to arrest the attention of all classes of citizens to the necessity of caring for their throats, avoiding exposure and shunning contact with infected persons.

—Twelve hundred head of sheep sold in England lately for $10,650, the highest price on record at a large sale.

—The enormous sum of $202,000,000 is invested in the submarine cables of the world, supposed to aggregate 64,000 miles in length.

—After January 1st the GAZETTE will only be sent to subscribers who have paid in advance.

—New York and Philadelphia Sunday papers for sale at Groff's cigar store.
